ODE TO THE RITZ BAR

“ Good morning, Mister, Sir or Count,
“ What will it be to-day! ”
And Frank awaits the deft reply :
“ The same as yesterday.”
The noise of liquor, ice and shake ;
A kingly mixing knack ;
A sandwich, almond or a chip,
Then “ bottoms-up ” and “ smack ” !
“ That’s pretty good! ” says he to Frank,
“ I guess I’ll shoot one more! ”
“ Right, Mister, Sir or Count, ” says Frank,
“ The morning’s rather raw! ”
A “ Rose ”, “ Martini sec ” or “ Bronx ”,
They’re all the same to Frank!
“ A call for you er — Mr. Smith,
You’re wanted at the Bank.”
“ Er — thank you, Frank, have you seen Jones ?
He said he’d meet me here.”
“ He just stepped out the Cambon side,
He’s had his morning beer.”
“ Un Porto flip pour vous, Vicomte ?
Vite là, petit, du lait! ”
“ You’re looking better, Mr. Brown,
Is this your first today ? ”
And so it goes from morn till night
And always you go back,
For never is your name forgot
By Frank the “ Cracker Jack ”.

FOREWORD

Though Frank Meier's primary object is to expound the art of mixing drinks which he has studied and practised so long, I feel that some mention should be made in the book regarding the institution of the American bar and the rare qualities which the man behind it should possess.

What Europeans call an American bar is in fact international in its true sense. Visitors from all countries expect, and can have, their own special drinks and whilst cocktails are perhaps the main "raison d'être" this institution has various other points. It is in a way a meeting-place where acquaintanceship and introductions are easy and where, in consequence, the barriers of many inhibitions and shyness disappear without great formality. This definition is not intended to accuse American bars of democracy, or to deny the merits of "pubs", "bistros" or "weinstuben". Many readers undoubtedly have their pet pub or beer garden to back against any bar.

Few people realize that the mood of the man when having his drink is of the greatest importance; if the drink, the atmosphere of the place, and the barman's smile and amiability are conducive to putting its patron in the right frame of mind, the success of such a place is certain.

The successful barman must be a chemist, a physiologist and a psychologist of the first order, in other words the true mixologist is a man of science. Furthermore, he requires an understanding of humanity, and ability to sympathize with his patrons' real or fancied troubles, and laugh when they repeat a story which he had told them the day before. He must be able and willing to advise on almost any subject from the proper diet for pet dogs or goldfish to selection of a restaurant or theatre which would please their aunts or their business associates. He must see that they are served promptly and with good drinks, and remember their individual preferences. He must develop some of the qualities of the chameleon, yet retain a personality of his own. Tact is essential, as misunderstandings have a way of arising after the ...nth drink. A good barman really requires everything a diplomat should have and something more, genuine knowledge of food and drink.

Frank Meier's book enables one to enjoy at home or elsewhere the various drinks which he has made and served to a world-wide clientele. His many friends and admirers will welcome his work, which gives the secret formulas.

Once more, even though absent, they will have those delicious drinks which Frank alone can serve. One element however will be lacking: the personality of the author and his proficiency.

INTRODUCTION

Many will ask what is the origin of Cocktails.

In compiling this book on the art of mixing drinks I have recently had the occasion to investigate the origin of the name "Cocktails". The inventor of this boon to mankind will perhaps always remain unknown.

But, in going through some old documents, I find the following story, which, authentic or not, may please many :

In 1779, Betsy Flanagan set up a "Tavern" near Yorktown where the American and French officers of the Revolutionary Army met and enjoyed a new sort of drink compounded by Betsy which became very popular and was called a "Bracer".

In the neighbourhood an Englishman kept splendid poultry imported from his mother-country. Betsy Flanagan was fiercely hostile to this gentleman and was always promising to feed the American and French officers with a fine fowl that was in the loyalist's grounds. From time to time they would tease her about the delay in carrying her promises into effect. One night, when there was an unusual attendance of these officers at the tavern, she invited them into her dining room where was spread a bountiful feast of chicken. The Englishman's chicken coop had been raided.

When the chicken banquet was over, Betsy invited the guests into the bar, and with great pride pointed to the chicken tails spread gracefully around bottles of "Bracers". The surprise was complete and the event recognized by three hearty cheers for Betsy Flanagan, the cause of the Colonists and confusion to the English.

The "Bracers" came off those shelves in a great hurry and the remainder of the night was passed in the bar-room amidst the "Cocks' Tails" and the inspiring "Bracers".

"Give us some more of those 'Cocktails,'" was the frequent order; "Vive la Cocktail," shouted a French officer. This was the keynote to the now celebrated name. It "stuck".

The above narration may be truth or fiction; what still remains a fact that has been known for over three generations throughout the civilized world is that, by using the finest ingredients, and mixed with care and precision, the Cocktail will always be the drink of good-fellowship.

More and more they are becoming popular, thousands of people on every part of the globe drink them, but few have acquired the art of mixing a perfect drink.

The Cocktail should always be perfect: there is no reason ever to drink a bad one. Almost any of the ingredients of which Cocktails are composed might better be consumed "straight" rather than just carelessly poured together.

Indications of Measures for Cocktails

- 2 fluid ounces 2 drams = 6 centilitres;
- 1 fluid ounce 1 dram = 3 centilitres;
- 4 drams $\frac{1}{2}$ = 1 centilitre $\frac{1}{2}$;
- 3 drams = 1 centilitre;
- 2 drams $\frac{1}{4}$ = 75 millilitres or 1 teaspoon;
- 1 teaspoon = 6 dashes;
- 1 dash = about 12 drops.

No standard size of glass has so far been adopted. The measures given of the amount of liquid used to make a normal size of six centilitres, or of two fluid ounces two drams; divided into halves, fourths, eighths, etc... One eighth equals one teaspoon or six dashes, or about seventy drops.

The "Gigger" in use in America is a very practical double measure: the bigger size holds one ounce two and a half drams, or three and a half centilitres; the small size about half of the above-mentioned amount.

The "Gill", an English measure, holds five fluid ounces and can be divided, when mixing Cocktails, in halves, thirds, fourths, fifths, sixths, eighths, etc... Great care should always be taken when mixing drinks: a little too much or not quite enough of the proportions indicated often changes the entire taste, thereby spoiling the result expected.

To have a perfect blend and smoothness use only the finest ingredients in making your drinks. A Cocktail is one of the last words in the "artistry of mixing".

Follow closely the formulas given herein and always refer to the pages of advertisements when replenishing your supplies. Aged whiskeys in Manhattans, "that supreme Gin", which is "The Heart of a good Cocktail", in Martinis and Bronx, and specially selected Vermouths in both.

Mix with infinite care and the result will be the Miracle-Cocktail which has made the Ritz Bar famous.

My book would not be complete without a word to the younger generation. Now, as in the past, the art of rational drinking is an accomplishment as indispensable as dancing or bridge, and a fair knowledge of wines and liqueurs, their provenance, characteristics, best years, etc., etc., forms part of a gentleman's culture. The passing generation of Englishmen knew wines, and it is my sincere hope that this knowledge be increased, throughout the world.

Any young man who can convince me that his lips will never touch alcohol need not follow my required course in drinks and drinking. To know how to drink is as essential as to know how to swim, and one should be at home in both these closely related elements. Each man reacts differently to alcohol; he should know before the time when, according to custom, he indulges in his first collegiate "binge", whether liquor affects his head, his legs or his morals; whether he sings, fights, weeps, climbs lamp-posts or behaves with excessive affection toward the opposite sex; whether, in short, it makes him a jovial companion or a social pest. A knowledge of these weaknesses will help to overcome them. "Know your capacity and stay within limits." One can drink sensibly, if one knows what a chaos a mixture of liquors can produce. "In vino veritas", so often quoted, does not mean that a man will tell the truth when in drink, but will reveal the hidden side of his character.

WINES

SI DIEU NOUS DÉFENDAIT DE BOIRE, AURAIT-IL FAIT LE VIN SI BON ?

Wine is justly considered the most wholesome of beverages.

1934 has been, according to official figures, the greatest wine producing year yet known. It is therefore of interest to write about it.

The 38 wine growing countries mentioned below :

Algeria, Argentine, Australia, Austria, the Azores and Canary Islands, Bolivia, Brazil, Bulgaria, Canada, Chili, Corsica, Czecho-Slovakia, Egypt, Germany, Greece and its Islands, Hungary, Italy, Jugo-Slavia, Luxemburg, Madeira, Mexico, Morocco, Palestine, Peru, Portugal, Rumania and Bessarabia, Russia, South Africa, Spain, Switzerland, Tunisia, Turkey and Cyprus, U.S. of America, Uruguay and France, have actually produced the impressive amount of 100,000,000,000 (one hundred billion) bottles, about five times the quantity of 1933.

Grapes will grow wherever there is a little sun. Since Caesar and the early Christian fathers discovered that the climate and soil of France produced superlatively fine wine, the French have made the best of ideal conditions until pure wine-making has become an art in which they excel.

They have proved that "years" are real tests of quality. No people more than the wine growers of Bordeaux, Burgundy and Champagne would like to have all years "great years". The next best thing to annual "great years" is purity and naturalness. This is what French wine producers insist on.

A good wine merchant, a good wine-butler or a good barman will always recommend real French wine.

HOW TO SERVE WINES

Caviar, Oysters, Hors d'œuvre : Chablis, Pouilly, Vouvray, Alsace.

Fish : Barsac, Cérons, Château Filhot, Montrachet.

Entrées : Light Clarets, Château Cantenac Prieuré, Château Gruaud-Larose, Château d'Issan, Cos d'Estournel.

Roasts, Fowl : Château Latour, Château Lafite, Château Cheval Blanc or light red Burgundies.

Game, Foie gras : Châteauneuf-du-Pape, Musigny, Pommard, Chambertin.

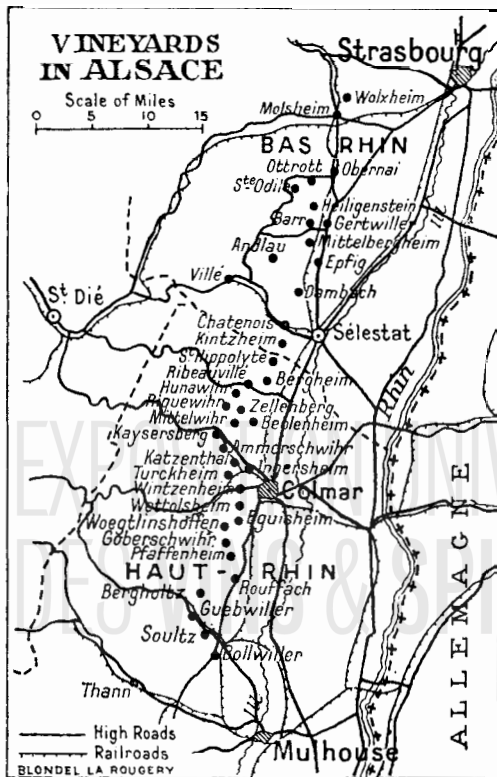

Entremets : Yquem, Suduiraut (Sauternes), Sweet or Medium Dry Champagne.

Almost any wine can be served with Cheese but red Burgundies are the choice of the gourmet.

To know wine, how to serve it and how to order a meal is and should be considered an art. Very few people, I am sorry to say, realize this. The above explanation "How to serve Wines" is very elaborate; much simpler ways exist to lunch and dine well.

Just one sort of wine (white Burgundies for lunch and Clarets for dinner in preference) can be served without being exposed to criticism. For smart dinners Champagne can be served from start to finish, and hosts of people, who have a knowledge of "savoir vivre", do it. It simplifies matters, and by offering expensive and fine wine like Champagne one can avoid the pitfalls of the uninitiated in wine law.

Champagne can be drunk at every hour; a good glass of dry Champagne is undoubtedly the most healthful "Bracer".

ALSACE

Since the world war no effort has been spared to bring up Alsatian wines to the reputation of the German Hocks and Moselles. The towns and such typical villages as Marlenheim-Wolsheim-Obernai - Molsheim - Heiligenstein - Otrott - Barr - Gertwiller - Mittelbergheim - Andlau - Dambach - Chatenois - Kintzheim - St-Hippolyte - Bergheim - Ribeauvillé - Hunawir -

Zellenberg - Beblenheim - Riquewahr - Mittelwahr - Kientzheim - Kaysersberg - Ammerschwahr - Katzenthal - Ingersheim - Türckheim - Wintzenheim - Colmar - Eguisheim - Wettolsheim - Woegtlinshoffen - Goberschwahr - Pfaffenheim - Rouffach - Guebwiller - Sultz - Thann - and many others, surrounded as they are by beautiful vineyards along the wide Rhine valley from Strasburg up as far as Thann and Mulhouse, produce those excellent and characteristic wines called Riesling, Traminer, Gewürz-Traminer, Knitterlé, Sporen, Clos Ste-Odile, Klevner, Gentil, Sylvaner, Rangen, Knipperlé, Chasselas, Zwicker, etc...

Most of them are fairly dry, with an exquisite and peculiar bouquet, and are very popular luncheon wines.

Kindly contributed by Pierre Freyburger.

BORDEAUX

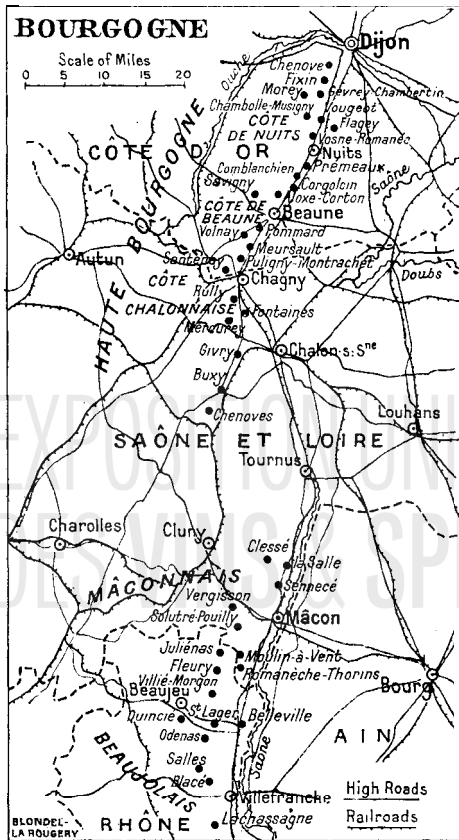

The town of Bordeaux has given its name to the world's most famous wine growing region. This fortunate district of more than 300,000 acres with its broad plains and sunny slopes produces some of the finest white and red wines (the latter also known as clarets), which can be called, without fear of contradiction, the aristocrats of the dinner table.

Of the seven regions : Médoc, Graves, Sauternes, St.-Emilionnais, Côtes, Palus, Entre-Deux-Mers; Médoc is the home of Château Lafite, Château Latour, Château Margaux, to speak only of first growths; Graves, of the Château Haut-Brion; Sauternes, of the Château Yquem (white); St.-Emilionnais, of the Château Cheval Blanc. Besides these very exceptional products, 16 2nd growths, 14 3rd growths, 10 4th growths, 17 5th growths also belong to the classified growths. Then come another 1359 Châteaux, Domains and Clos (1421 in all) which produce the huge quantities of Bordeaux wines, red and white, here mentioned :

France without the Colonies produced 75,143,622 hectolitres, or 9,392,952,750 bottles of wine in 1934, against 49,690,687 hectolitres in 1933.

BURGUNDY

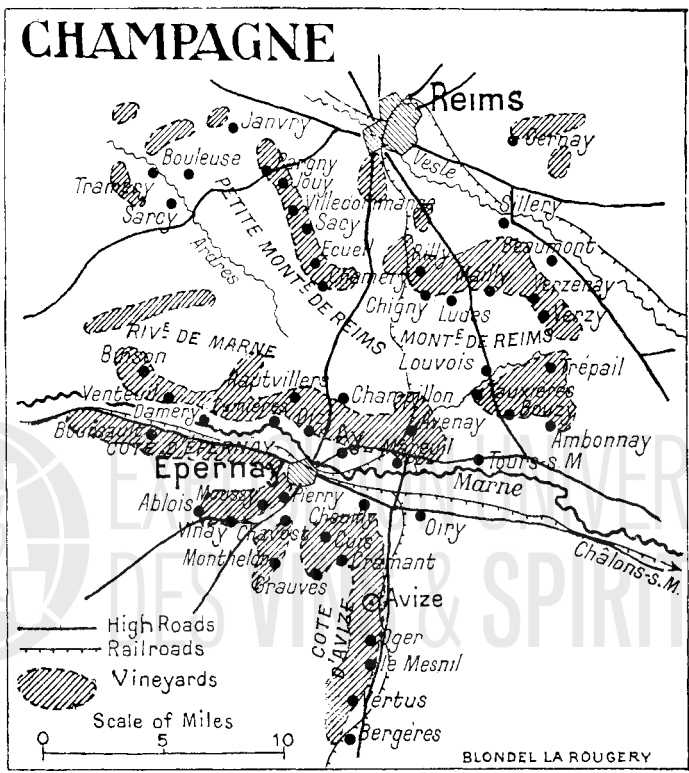

La Bourgogne" comprises a region about 180 miles long and in some places almost 60 miles wide.

It produces the greatest, rarest and probably the most imitated of wine.

Although not officially classified like the Bordeaux wines, the Burgundies have always been considered as the kings of all wines. The Côte de Dijon, the Côte de Nuits and Côte de Beaune (Côte d'Or or Golden Hills) and the Côte Chalonnaise produce in an average good year about 300,000,000 bottles, and without any exaggeration fully ten times that amount of wine is sold throughout the world as Burgundy from France.

The Rhône Valley (Côtes du Rhône) also produces excellent red and white wines. The outstanding brands are Côte Rôtie, Hermitage, Châteauneuf-du-Pape, Château Grillet, and Tavel (couleur rosée).

CHAMPAGNE

The vines imported into the Champagne region by the Romans at the beginning of the III century were cultivated and improved by the religious orders, who immediately recognized that wine was a source of progress, of activity and of health: it was therefore under the protection of the monasteries that most of the vineyards rose to prosperity.

About the XIV century vineyards covered the whole district and from that time onwards the wine was proudly offered to the Kings of France when they came to be crowned at Rheims.

Champagne was then looked upon as the greatest treasure in the cellars of the Kings and nobles; good King Henri IV delighted in bedecking himself with the title of "Lord of Ay".

The most consummate tasters at the Court of Louis XIV, who instituted the "Order of the Hillside", made the reputation of Champagne. "Spare no expense," wrote Saint Evremond to the Count of Olonne, "to get some Champagne; no district supplies better wine for all seasons." At the end of the XVII century a Benedictine monk, belonging to the Abbey of Hautvillers near Epernay, discovered the method of bottling the wine at the right season and making it retain its sparkling qualities, together with perfect limpidity and a pale colour... hitherto unknown.

This discovery led to a great development of the renown of Champagne, and the memory of Dom Perignon, who is buried at Hautvillers, is duly honoured in the country.

While the gathering of the grapes is in full swing on the hills, carts go to and fro between the vineyards and the press houses; the presses are worked day and night, and thousands of barrels of the precious "must" are carried off to the merchants' establishments.

The fermentation, due to ferments which are naturally present in the juice, begins at once in the barrels; the "must" appears to be in a state of ebullition and swells and hisses under the influence of the changes which are taking place in its composition. Little by little everything calms down, and the miracle of fermentation is accomplished. What was only sweet grape juice is now magnificent wine.

To the wine, in order to facilitate the fermentation, a very small quantity of pure candy sugar is added, and the bottles are securely corked and lowered to the cellars.

The bottles are placed in holes in a board, in a sloping position with the cork downwards; after several years of this treatment, the whole of the deposit collects close to the cork.

The cork is removed by the pressure from natural gas, it is actually driven out and the sediment with it. The wine is perfectly limpid now and before recorking the bottle the necessary sweetening is effected by adding still more pure candy sugar dissolved in Champagne of the best quality. The object of this is to meet the taste of the consumer, who, according to different countries, may prefer wines more or less sweetened.

Before shipping, the bottle is "dressed" with a capsule and label bearing the name of the firm and the word "Champagne" which is a legal guarantee of its origin.

The district which the French law has authorized to give the name of Champagne to its wine is small compared with other wine growing regions. The nature of the soil, the sorts of vine grown, and the special methods of cultivation in use result in the production of a high quality at the sacrifice of quantity; here, as elsewhere, quality is scarcely compatible with quantity.

The crop varies considerably from year to year and can only be estimated by taking an average over a long period. For 30 normal years the average production was 450,000 hectolitres or about 10,000,000 gallons a year, i.e. 60,000,000 bottles.

SAUMUR

A tour of the Châteaux of Touraine is incomplete without a visit to Saumur, a pleasant town, built in a picturesque position between the Loire and the Thouet.

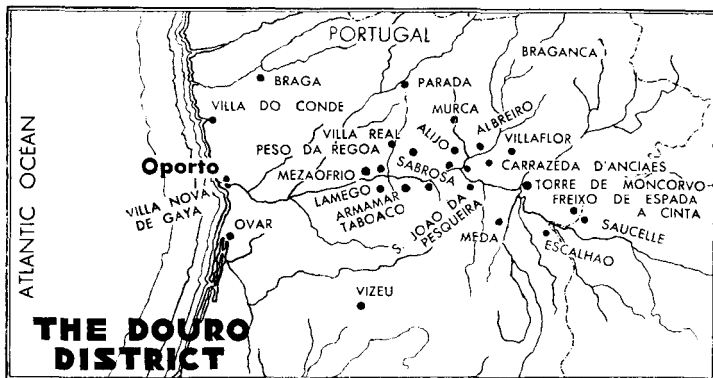

On the banks of the Thouet is the village of Saint-Hilaire-Saint-Florent, with curious caves hollowed out of the hillside. This is the centre of the sparkling wine industry of Saumur, founded by Jean Ackerman in 1811.

It is essential to understand that all genuine sparkling wines, i.e., wines which have been treated by the old process discovered in Champagne by Dom Perignon more than 200 years ago and known as "Méthode Champenoise", are, strictly speaking, "manufactured": in other words, the wine, as originally pressed from the grapes, has undergone a certain preparation and manipulation which are absolutely necessary in order that it shall become brilliant and leave the bottle with sparkle.

Sparkling wine differs from still wine mainly because it retains a certain quantity of the carbonic acid gas, due to the alcoholic fermentation having been allowed to complete its natural course in the bottle.

The amount of skill required in the choice of the most suitable wines and to obtain the correct amount of sparkle, is very considerable, necessitating expert knowledge.

PORT

The district producing Port Wine commences about 30 miles inland from Oporto and extends to the Spanish frontier. The vineyards are planted on specially laid out terraces along the steep hillsides of the valley of the river Douro.

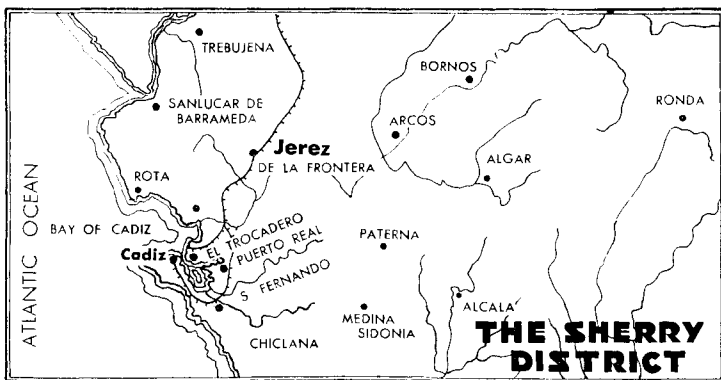

Port Wine is grown and made in a specified district called the Douro, must test at least 18° (Gay Lussac), and must be shipped from Oporto. As in every wine growing country, the crop varies every year. Nevertheless the production of Port Wine for the last ten years averages almost ten million gallons a year. England imports about half the yearly production.

The Standard gauge of a pipe of Porto Wine is 115 gallons or 522 litres or 690 bottles.

MADEIRA

Madeira Island, about 400 miles from the Portuguese coast, produces very excellent but heavy wine, a fairly dry kind and a very sweet one.

Long sea voyages, — it is still said, — are necessary greatly to improve that famous product.

SHERRY

Sherry is a wine produced in a particular area in south-west Spain, which has as its centre the town of Jerez de la Frontera.

All genuine Sherry has its origin in grapes grown and pressed in the vineyards of this area and matured there.

England alone imports about three million gallons yearly.

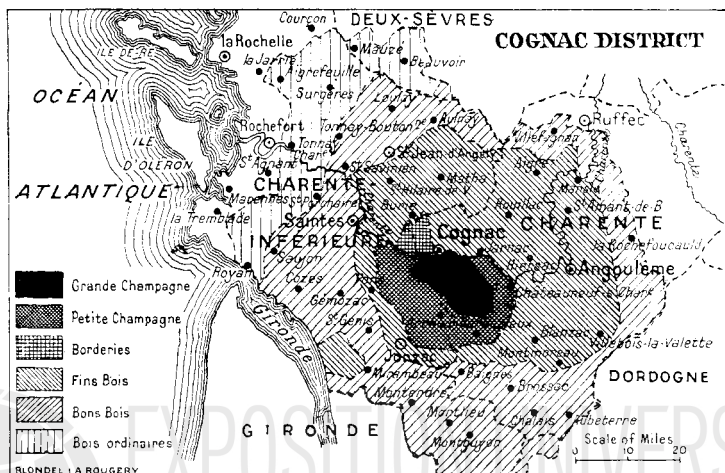

MALAGA AND WINES FROM THE CANARY ISLANDS

Malaga, on the south coast of Spain, and the Canary Islands also produce well known Spanish wines.

The wine of Malaga is extremely sweet, slightly fortified and walnut-coloured and has a powerful and unmistakable bouquet.

The Canary Islands wines are like those of Madeira, but generally considered less fine.

COGNAC

Cognac Brandy is produced in the two departments of Charente and Charente-Inférieure, and the town of Cognac has for centuries been the centre of the Brandy trade.

Brandy merchants were known already in the Cognac district about the middle of the XVII century. In the beginning of the XVIII century, firms at present existing were established, and from this date the Cognac trade began to take an important position, its produce becoming celebrated the world over.

The Charentes are divided into districts known by the names of "Grande Champagne", "Petite Champagne", "Borderies", "Fins Bois", "Bons Bois" and "Bois Ordinaires", producing Brandies of various grades. The blending of all these different qualities, in the proportions required to suit the taste of different countries, constitutes the secret of each firm.

Brandy is distilled from white wines. The grapes are pressed and the juice after a few weeks of active fermentation is ready for distillation. The apparatus used in the Charente is the old pot still.

The liquid obtained is the delicious Brandy of Cognac. It is drawn off into good new oak casks, there to be stored for years until it is mellowed by age, reduced in strength by evaporation, coloured by the wood, and has gained the inimitable aroma for which old Cognac Brandy has become famous.

GOOD BRANDY IS THE LIVING SOUL OF GOOD WINE
IT HAS LEFT ITS BODY, BUT IT LIVETH. André L. Simon.

ARMAGNAC

Armagnac comes from the district of the same name in the department of the Gers, south-east of Bordeaux.

Most of that fine product is made by small land and vineyard owners, and, unlike Cognac Brandies, is distilled at a considerable lower degree; it is heavier and matures more quickly.

CALVADOS

Calvados or Apple Brandy is made in the department of Calvados in Normandy. Distilled from Cider, it is delicious when properly aged.

MARC

Marc is another kind of Brandy and is distilled from the residue of pressed grapes. The Marc de Bourgogne and the Marc de Champagne are the most renowned.

VERMOUTH

Vermouth, in German Wermut, or Wormwood in English, is white wine fermented in the sun, fortified with alcohol and rendered aromatic by adding herbs and spices.

The two best Vermouths made in France are the Noilly-Prat and the Chambéry. Italy also produces several high class Vermouths of which Martini is the best known; they are generally very sweet, being made mostly of Muscat grapes.

NAUTICAL MILES

The circumference of the earth is divided into 360 degrees, each degree containing 60 nautical miles, consequently the circumference of the earth, viz. 131,385,456 feet divided by 21,600 (360×60) gives the length of a nautical mile, viz. 6,082·66 feet, which is generally considered the standard.

1 statute mile = 5,280 feet

1 degree „ = 69·121 statute miles.

The nautical mile and geographical mile are now accepted as 6,080 feet.

The small difference between the two values is as follows :

Based on 6,080 ft. Based on 6,082·66 ft.

1 nautical mile = 1·15 statute mile = 1·152 statute mile

25 nautical miles = 28·78 statute miles = 28·8 statute miles

1 statute mile = ·8684 naut. mile = ·868 naut. mile

25 statute miles = 21·71 nautical miles = 21·7 naut. miles

1 kilometre = 0·62 statute mile = 1,094 yards = 3,280·8 feet

8 kilometres = 5 miles approximately.

The French, German and Austrian nautical mile is 6,076 feet in length.

The knot is a measure of speed, the speed of one knot being a speed of one nautical mile per hour.

To convert statute miles into nautical miles multiply statute miles by 0·8684; to convert nautical miles into statute miles, multiply nautical miles by 1·1515.

THE EARTH

The superficial area of the earth is 196,950,000 square miles— 139,440,000 square miles of water and 57,510,000 sq. miles of land.

The equatorial circumference of the earth is 24,902 miles; the meridional circumference, 24,860 miles.

The earth is divided into 360 degrees. The length of one degree of longitude is 69·121 miles. Each degree of longitude represents four minutes of time. The lines of longitude are termed "Meridians".

The diameter of the earth at the equator is 7,926·677 miles, and through the poles 7,899·988 miles.

The weight of the earth has been estimated at six sextillion, 592 quintillion tons, not including the atmosphere, whose weight has been estimated at more than five quadrillion short tons.

The average elevation of the land above sea level is approximately 2,800 feet.

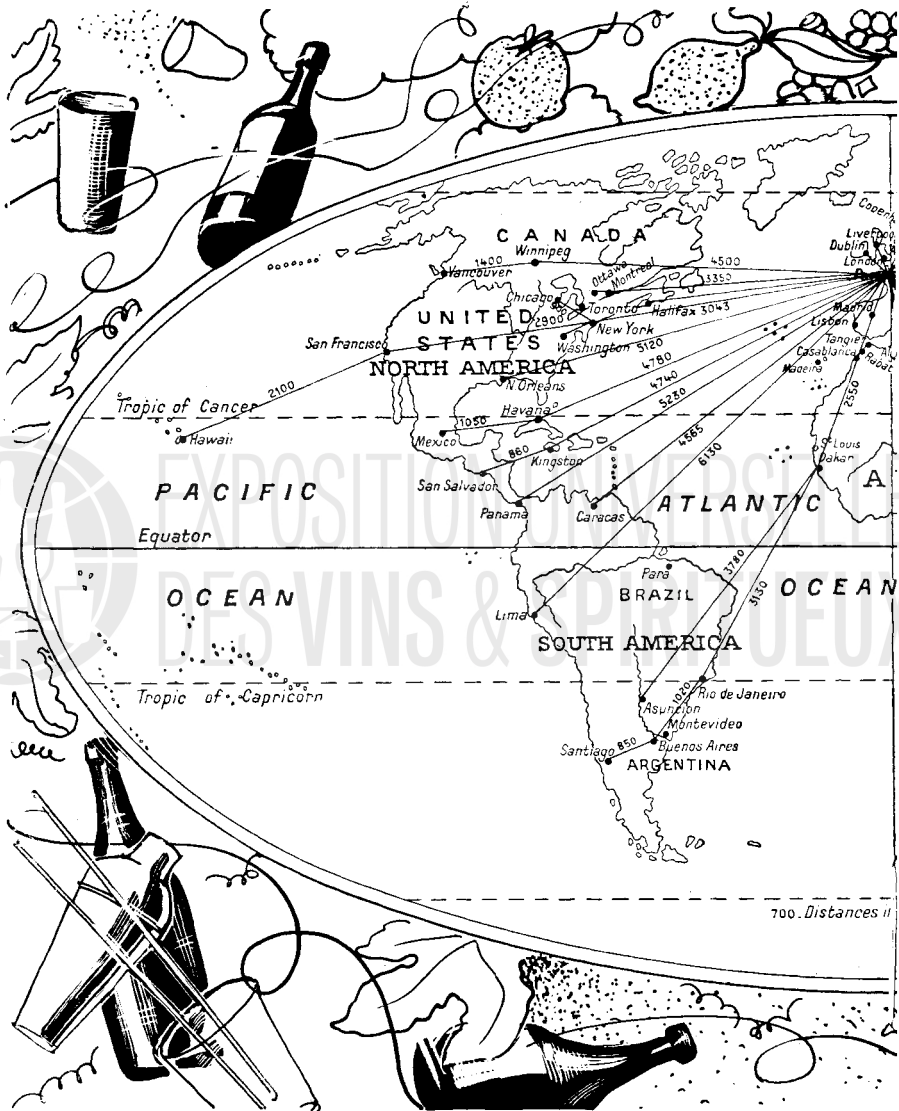

The average depth of the ocean below sea level is 12,500 feet.

The deepest place in the ocean yet found is in the Mindinao, between the Philippines and Japan, where soundings of 34,210 feet have been reported.

The highest mountain is Mount Everest, in the Himalayas, 29,141 feet.

Over 2,000,000,000 (two billions) of people live on the globe and speak actually 2,800 different languages.

PRESSURE

1 kilo per square centimetre = 14·228 lbs. per square inch.

1 lb. per square inch = ·0703 kilos per square cm.

Steam rising from water at its boiling point (212°) has a pressure equal to the atmosphere (14·7 lbs. to the sq. inch).

To evaporate one cubic foot of water requires the consumption of 7 1/2 lbs. of ordinary coal, or about 1 lb. of coal to 1 gallon of water.

One-sixth of tensile strength of plate multiplied by thickness of plate and divided by one-half the diameter of boiler gives safe working pressure for tubular boilers. For marine boilers add 20 per cent for drilled holes.

No plate or bars of either steel or iron should be worked at a black or blue heat (say about 500°); the material will stand far more strain either red hot or cold, while at an intermediate point great risks will be run and possible strains produced which result in rupture later on.

METRIC CARAT WEIGHTS FOR PRECIOUS STONES, METALS AND PEARLS

The weight of precious stones is given in metric carats; a metric carat is divided into 100 cent-carats. A metric carat = 0·2 gramme.

For pearls the grain is used. The grain equals 1/4 carat or 0·05 gramme and is divided into 100 parts.

There are weights for the carat, multiples and submultiples. They are used for precious stones and pearls. Special weights in grains do not exist.

To obtain a weight in grains, multiply by 4 the weight in carats.

1 gramme = 5 carats = (5 × 4) 20 grains.

1 carat = 0·2 gramme; 1 grain = 0·05 gramme.

The carat is correctly used as expressing the degree of fineness, but not as a weight. Pure gold is described as 24 carats.

If a gold coin or any other gold article is of say 24, 22, 20, 18, 14, 9 carats, then it contains 24, 22, 20, 18, 14, 9 parts of pure gold, and the remaining parts are alloy.

Therefore we may consider that a golden jewel

at 22 carats	has a standard of	0.915
— 20 —	—	0.832
— 18 —	—	0.750
— 14 —	—	0.593
— 9 —	—	0.375

but these standards are observed only when an official Law of Control is imposed, as it is in France.

0.950 is the standard for platinum used in jewels and works of art.

0.950 - 0.800 are the standards used for silverware.

FOR CLEANING VARIOUS SUBSTANCES

Alabaster. — Use strong soap and water.

Black silk. — Brush and wipe it thoroughly, lay on table with the side intended to show up; sponge with hot coffee strained through muslin; when partly dry, iron.

To remove stains or grease from oil paint. — Use bisulphide of carbon, spirits of turpentine or, if dry and old, use chloroform. These and tar spots can be softened with olive oil and lard.

Stains, iron rust, or ink from vellum or parchment. — Moisten the spot with a solution of oxalic acid. Absorb same quickly with blotting paper or cloth.

Rust from steel. — Take half ounce of emery powder mixed with one ounce of soap and rub well.

Fruit spots from cottons. — Apply cold soap, then touch the spot with a hair pencil or feather dipped in chlorate of soda, dip immediately in cold water.

Grease from silks. — Take a lump of magnesia rub it wet on the spot, let it dry, then brush the powder off.

Iron rust. — May be removed from white goods by sour milk.

Scorch stains from white linen. — Lay in bright sun.

Oil marks on wall paper. — Apply paste of cold water and pipe clay, leave it on all night, brush off in the morning.

Paint spots from clothing. — Saturate with equal parts of turpentine and spirits of ammonia.

To cleanse house or wall paper. — Rub with a flannel cloth dipped in oatmeal.

Black cloth. — Mix one part of spirits of ammonia with three parts warm water, rub with sponge or dark cloth, clean with water, rub with the nap.

Furniture for fingermarks. — Rub with a soft rag and sweet oil.

- Chromos. — Go over lightly with a damp linen cloth.
- Zinc. — Rub with a piece of cotton cloth dipped in kerosene, afterwards with a dry cloth.
- Vegetable stains from hands. — Rub with raw potato.
- Window glass. — Paint can be removed by a strong solution of soda.
- To clean tin ware. — Common soda applied with a moistened newspaper and polished with a dry piece will make it look like new.
- To remove dog urine from carpets or rugs. — Rub with gin.

HELP IN CASE OF ACCIDENT

Drowning. — 1. Loosen clothing if any. 2. Empty lungs of water by laying body on stomach and lifting it by middle so that the head hangs down. Jerk the body a few times. 3. Pull tongue forward, using handkerchief, or pin with string if necessary. 4. Imitate motion of respiration by alternately compressing and expanding the lower ribs about twenty times a minute. Alternately raising and lowering the arms from the sides up above the head will stimulate the action of the lungs. Let it be done gently but persistently. 5. Apply warmth and friction to extremities. 6. By holding the tongue forward, closing the nostrils and pressing the "Adam's Apple" back (so as to close the entrance to the stomach), direct inflation can be tried. Take a deep breath and breathe forcibly into the mouth of the patient, compress the chest to expel the air and repeat the operation. 7. Don't give up. People have been saved after hours of patient, vigorous effort. 8. When breathing begins get patient into a warm bed, give warm drinks of spirits in teaspoonfuls, fresh air and quiet.

Burns and scalds. — Cover with cooking soda and apply wet cloths. Whites of eggs and olive oil. Olive or linseed oil, plain or mixed, with chalk or whiting.

Lightning. — Dash cold water over the person struck.

Sunstroke. — Loosen clothing. Get patient into shade and apply ice cold water to head.

Mad dog or snake bite. — Tie cord tight above wound. Suck the wound and cauterize with caustic or white hot iron at once, or cut out adjoining parts with a sharp knife.

Venomous insects' stings, etc. — Apply weak ammonia, oil, salt water, or iodine.

Fainting. — Place flat on back; allow fresh air and sprinkle with water.

Cinders in the eye. — Roll soft paper up like a lamp lighter and wet tip to remove, or use a medicine dropper to draw it out. Rub other eye.

Open wounds. — On scratches and slight wounds apply half strength iodine. Dirty or greasy wounds should first be cleansed with high grade benzine. All open wounds should be covered with gauze and bandage from first-aid kit.

Never wash or touch a wound with fingers or that part of the gauze that comes in contact with the wound. Never use cobwebs, tobacco, waste or oil, as they may cause blood poisoning.

HORSE RACING

The Ancients had chariot races, the Romans raced riderless horses, but real horse-racing had its inception in England, race meetings were already held, records show, at Smithfield, in 1174.

Henry VIII arranged for the first racing at Chester; James I built a course at Newmarket in 1607 and during his reign the three ancestors of all thoroughbreds: Byerley Turk, Darley Arabian and Godolphin Arabian were imported from Arabia.

Charles I gave a cup to be raced for in Hyde Park. Charles II instituted Autumn meetings at Newmarket and occasionally rode in races there. Royal Ascot dates from the time of Queen Anne, the first meeting being held on August 11th, 1711.

The Doncaster St. Leger, so called after Colonel St. Leger, was first run in 1776. Three years later the 12th Earl of Derby inaugurated the Oaks, named after his seat, "The Oaks", and the following year the same nobleman founded the world's greatest classic, "The Derby", run for the first time over a mile on May 4th, 1780, worth £1,100; the race was won by "Diomed," who was later sent to America.

Nowadays the race is over a mile and a half, is generally run on the first Wednesday in June, and the value has so increased that it was worth in 1935 nearly £10,000 to "Bahram" owned by H. H. The Aga Khan.

Four foreign horses have won this classic: the French-bred "Gladiateur" in 1865, the Hungarian-bred "Kisber" in 1875, the American horse "Iroquois" in 1881 and the French-trained "Durbar" in 1914. "Gladiateur" also won the Two Thousand Guineas, the St. Leger and the Ascot Gold Cup; he was however not the first French horse to win in England—this honour belongs to "Jouvence", who in 1853 won the Goodwood Cup.

Goodwood races were established in 1802, the Goodwood Cup being given in 1812. The Two and One Thousand Guineas came in 1809 and 1814 respectively; the Manchester Cup in 1816, the Cesarewitch and Cambridgeshire in 1839. Mr. A. K. Macomber, an American owner, won both these Autumn handicaps in 1925 with "Forseti" and "Masked Marvel".

The Queen Alexandra Stakes, a very popular race over 2 miles 6 fur. 85 yds, was won on six consecutive occasions 1929-34 by "Brown Jack", Steve Donoghue up. The Queen Alexandra Stakes is by no means the longest flat race in the world; this title is rightly claimed for the Prix Gladiateur run at Longchamp on the last Sunday in October, over 3 miles 7 furlongs.

The most sensational event in horse racing is the Grand National Steeplechase run in March, at Aintree, Liverpool. There are 30 jumps, the water jumps being 15 ft. wide, and the distance is 4 miles 856 yards; the race dates from 1839.

The Jockey Club in England was founded in 1750, and the Stud Book created in 1791.

The first racing recorded in France was in 1651, in gardens at the Muette in Paris. No organized meeting took place until 1776 when races were arranged on the Plaine des Sablons, the site of the present Longchamp, which in 1857, was rented by the Société d'Encouragement who built the famous course, and Napoleon III went from Paris by boat on the Seine to inaugurate it the same year. The French rules on racing were drawn up in 1780; these, during the Revolution, had been completely forgotten. Napoleon I revived racing in 1805, but had a wrong opinion of the thoroughbred, for he officially proclaimed that the half-bred was its superior; weight was allotted according to the horse's height and not for age or merit.

In 1806 a Grand Prix was instituted and called successively Prix Royal, Grand Prix Royal, Grand Prix National, Grand Prix Imperial, Grand Prix de l'Empereur and since 1869 Prix Gladiateur: therefore, the oldest race in France. The most famous French race is the Grand Prix de Paris; it was for several years the richest race in the world. In 1908 it was won by Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt, owner of "Northeast", over 400,000 gold francs. Run at Longchamp on the last Sunday in June over 1 mile 7 furlongs, it was created in 1863 and won that year by "The Ranger", an English horse, in front of the famous French filly "La Toucques", the only filly to have won both French Oaks and Derby. 14 English horses have won the Grand Prix; "Gallop Light", "Comrade" and "Lemonora" are the winners since the resumption of that race after the world war.

Mr. Edmond Blanc, brother of Camille Blanc, of Monte Carlo fame, who raced very successfully for over forty years, won the Grand Prix on no fewer than seven occasions and in 1903 his colts "Quo Vadis", "Caius" and "Vinicius" filled the first three places, a feat which will stand for many years. In 1899 he paid the colossal sum in those days of one million francs (about £40,000) for the English Derby winner "Flying Fox".

The formation of the Société d'Encouragement in Nov. 1833 led to the creation of the Jockey Club, the Stud Book, and later the classical races : the Prix d'Essai des Poulains in 1841, des Pouliches in 1841, the Prix de Diane in 1843, the Prix du Jockey Club in 1836, the Grand Prix de Paris in 1863. The Prix du Jockey Club or French Derby was first run at Chantilly, and was won by a horse named "Frank" owned by Lord Henry Seymour, the famous dandy, known in history as "Milord l'Arsouille". To the five classic races mentioned above the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe was added in 1920.

Auteuil (Paris), the most beautifully laid out steeplechase course, exists since 1873. The best known of the many events run there are the Grand Steeple-Chase (6,500 metres), the Grande Course de Haies and the Prix des Drags, which are run respectively on Sunday, Wednesday and Friday of the Grande Semaine at the end of June.

The importation of a thoroughbred into America dates back to 1730 and the first races were held in South Carolina in 1734. A genealogical register, "Stud Book," for the keeping of records, became an established custom as early as 1829.

Horse races are popular in most States. The principal events, like the Kentucky Derby and Oaks, are run in Louisville, Ky.

The Belmont Stakes, the Futurity, the Withers, the Lawrence Realisation, the Swift, the National Stallion, the Champagne and the Ladies' Handicap are held at Belmont Park.

The American Derby is run at Washington Park, Illinois. The Chesapeake Stakes at Havre de Grace, the Detroit Derby at Detroit, the Classic Stakes at Arlington, the Great American Stakes at Aqueduct, N.Y.; the Latonia Derby at Latonia, Ky., the St. Louis Derby at St. Louis, the Prakness and the Walden Stakes at Pimlico, Maryland; the Saratoga Cup, the Saratoga Special, the Alabama, the Hopeful and the Travers Stakes at Saratoga; the Santa Anita Handicap at Los Angeles, the richest race in America (worth over $108,000 in 1935), have heavy future books and are outstanding social events.

Other Countries where thoroughbred horses are run before huge crowds of the elite are Belgium, with the Internationale at Ostend, and Italy with the Derby and the Regina Elena Cup at Rome and lately the million lire Steeplechase at Merano (Tyrol). Germany has important meetings at Berlin and Baden-Baden and both Vienna and Budapest turn out very big crowds for thoroughbred racing, whilst all Australasia is brought to fever pitch over the Melbourne Cup.
